

CENTRAL SCHOOL TRANSFORMED INTO OFFICIAL HEADQUARTERS

The Central School building has been transformed into a modern office building and at present the heads of the graded schools are making it their headquarters. In addition to the wing occupied by city school superintendent John D. Loper and his assistants there are at least a dozen more offices for rent and the money derived from rentals will be used for school purposes. Superintendent Loper stated yesterday that the amount in rents would cover the interest on enough bonds to build a school house although he did not see any immediate need for a building.

"I do not believe a new building will be required next year although all the buildings with the exception of Garfield, were up to capacity last winter," said Mr. Loper. He is well pleased with his new quarters not only for the convenience in the matter of location but because the building is excellently adapted for school purposes. In addition to his own office which is open from eight o'clock until noon, Assistant Superintendent C. W. Randall and his secretary, Miss Henrietta Dawson occupy the wing which is shared by the school physician and the primary supervisor and supervisors of drawing and music. While the building will no longer be used as a school it will remain in the hands of the board of trustees and the members have agreed to manage and control it as any other office building. The walls have been refinished and varnishing has added materially in the general scheme of renovation. It has the general appearance of an up-to-date office. Adjoining Mr. Loper's office is the supply room.

Carrying out his economical policy

Mr. Loper, his assistant and secretary distribute all the supplies and the free text books to the schools of this city. There is probably no school in the country but has not only a clerk but an entire staff of clerks engaged for this work alone. Mr. Loper will not permit the schools to be burdened with overhead expense and is willing to add to his own cares and responsibilities by taking on the labor of supplying books to the 4,000 school children of Phoenix.

There will be a few changes in the teaching force next year. Out of the 105 teachers employed last season only one has been married since the close of school. With a big majority of the teachers women, Mr. Loper declares this is phenomenal as compared with past years. All the appointments for 1916-1917 have been made and include the names of several Phoenix young women who will hold their first positions in the local schools. They are Miss Ruth Alsworth, Miss Ruth Jessup, Miss Bernice Shackelford, Miss Erle Dameron, Miss Irene Foley, Miss Ruby Shott, Miss Alice Forshee and Miss Ellen Humphrey.

of the Independent Oilmen's Association, Zone Three, declared today that prices of gasoline depend upon the weather. If this summer is as rainy as last, the price of gasoline may go down, but if the season is favorable to traveling, the price at least will stay where it is and possibly may go a notch or two higher. The meeting will be in session two days. A. J. Callahan of Jackson, Mich., was among the speakers today.

NEW ADVERTISING LAW EFFECTIVE

Purpose is to Curb Misstatements and Irresponsibility by Unscrupulous Advertisers

After several years of agitation, Massachusetts, beginning May 25, is to have a law which many interests believe will be effective in coping with untrue and misleading advertising on the part of irresponsible individuals or firms. The law has been enacted by the legislature and signed by Governor McCall to protect the citizens of the commonwealth from unwittingly entering into business relations with unscrupulous persons.

Credit for the new law is given in large measure to the retail trade board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, which introduced House Bill 1660 into this year's session of the Legislature after the board's Advertising Vigilance Association had made a thorough study of the situation.

It is not claimed that this new enactment is perfect, but it is held that through its operation the following kinds of misstatements in advertising can be effectively prevented, which could not be reached under the former statute:

Misstatements of value where an advertiser advertises an article at a certain price, stating that its value was really much in excess of that price.

Misstatements as to services offered. There is declared to be a class of advertisements that agree to furnish certain services and state that the advertiser has in his employment certain persons of well-known reputation, when in fact those persons never heard of the enterprise.

Misstatements regarding securities offered for sale. Misleading statements designed to induce the public into the establishment of the advertiser.

An Advertising Vigilance Association organized by the retail trade board several years ago, to see that the fraudulent advertising law was enforced, shortly found that the law was easily evaded: that from some points of view it was a veritable sieve. A special committee of the chamber was appointed to consider a revision of the law that would put effectiveness in the statute. House Bill 1660 was the result.

Originally the bill was reported adversely by the legislative committee on joint judiciary. The board then took hold of the matter and the bill finally passed both houses.
